

STONE GIRL'S STORY CONVICTS JONES

Faced With Reform School Herself, Girl Finally Admits She Has Been At His Home

Although Maggie Stone, the 14-year-old girl, was present when county court was convened Monday morning when first she was put on the stand she told such a tale of her adventures since she left the Black school house two weeks ago and has been missing from the home of her parents, Wm. Stone and wife, near Shearer, that County Judge W. K. Price not only refused to suspend any of the prison term fines imposed upon Gardner Jones, who was charged having taken her, from the school, but the Judge also had a warrant issued for the girl, and declared he would send her to the Reform School.

With the prospect of the Reform School staring her in the face, the girl finally decided to tell the truth and admitted that she had left the school with Jones, had gone with him in a buggy as far as Shearer, had walked across the railroad bridge to Ford, and down past Boonesboro, where he met her again with his buggy, and took her to his home where she has been since.

Not until the futility, of any effort to shield Jones was shown her, did the girl finally change the story which she told when first questioned about her whereabouts for the past two weeks. That story was so weird and improbable that not a soul in the courtroom seemed to believe it.

The girl declared that she had not left the Black school with Gardner Jones, nor had she seen him since that time two weeks ago when several witnesses at his trial testified they saw her get into the buggy with him and drive off. She further said that she had been hiding in a cornfield near his house, going into the house to get something to eat when he or his wife was out of the house. She said that she had been sleeping in the cornfields and in the hay in the barn.

Notwithstanding, she claimed to have had such an outing, the girl appeared at her home Sunday afternoon about three o'clock in clean clothes and looking as fresh as a daisy, her mother told Judge Price this morning.

Mrs. Stone said that she wanted the girl sent to the Reform school if she would not tell the truth. She said the girl came home, looking just as she did in court this morning, when she wore a clean dress, and silk stockings. The father said that Jones came to their home Sunday and begged Mrs. Stone to release the peace bond against him. Mrs. Stone refused. Later as Jones went out, Mr. Stone says that he told his son, Price Stone, that "Maggie will be home this afternoon."

However, Jones still maintained that he knew nothing of the whereabouts of the girl.

Although only 14 years old, the Stone girl appears well developed for her age. She was placed on the stand after some discussion between the attorneys for the prosecution and the court in regard to suspending the 50 days jail sentence imposed by a jury last week upon Jones, for contributing to the delinquency of the girl. Attorney Wallace argued that Jones has a family and a large crop; that the girl has come home, and justice would be subserved by his payment of the fine.

The Judge seemed on the point of suspending the jail sentence. He declared that he wanted only to give every man a square deal and do the right thing, but that a jury had found Jones guilty of taking the girl away and he felt it his duty to uphold the law of the commonwealth. He suggested that the girl was in court, and that there was yet a chance to prove that Jones was not guilty.

The girl was then called to the stand. Judge Price had to explain to her the nature of an oath and the penalty for false swearing. Then she told the tale of hiding out in the corn field for a couple of weeks, and in the cross-examination the attorneys could not shake her. She said that she went from the Black school to Shearer, walked down the railroad tracks to the river, went across on the railroad bridge to Ford; and then she went to the cornfield near Jones' house. Asked why she did not go in, she said that Jones had told her that if she ran away from home that she could not come to his house.

Judge Price and in fact, everyone was amazed by the story the girl told. The Judge questioned her at length himself. He told her that no sane man would believe any such story, and that unless she wanted to go to the Reform School herself as a delinquent, she would have to tell the truth. As the girl still stuck to her story, Judge Price peremptorily directed Sheriff Whitlock to take Jones to jail to begin serving the sentence imposed by the jury, and take the girl into custody.

The girl, her parents and the attorneys went to Judge Price's office, where the Judge, the attorneys and the child's parents made every effort to induce her to tell the truth, to save herself from the Reform School. Judge Price said unless she did tell exactly where she was and about her leaving the school and not try to shield anyone, he would send her to the Reform School until she was 21 years of age. She was told that nothing she could say would save Jones. She asked where he was and was told that he had already gone to jail.

After the little girl had been talked to at length by County Attorney Jackson in a fatherly way, and shown the error of what she was doing, she broke down and said she would tell the story of just what had happened. She said she went with Jones in his buggy, a short distance down the road, walked across the railroad bridge, and down the pike to beyond the Boonesboro ferry. She then got into the buggy again, and went home with Jones. Mr. Jackson wrote down her story as an affidavit and she swore to it before Judge Price, after the latter had asked her if it was true. She was then allowed to go home with her parents, while Jones remained in jail.

County Attorney Jackson will go before the grand jury is said and seek to have Jones indicted on a charge of perjury, inasmuch as he swore repeatedly on the witness stand Friday that he did not take the girl in his buggy nor have her at his home. Jones has 50 days in jail to serve on the delinquency charge and an appealed sentence of 20 days, also before him on the pistol charge, so that he has some little time to spend in the Madison county jail before the question of a perjury charge is brought against him. This would have to be done at the October term of the Madison circuit court.

The affidavit that Maggie Stone swore to before Judge Price reads as follows: Commonwealth of Kentucky, County of Madison.

The affiant, Maggie Stone, states under oath that about 12 o'clock, August 4th, 1919, that Gardner Jones did come to the school house, known as the Black school house, driving a no-top buggy, and asked the affiant to go home with him; and that she got in the said buggy, and rode down the pike a short distance to where Mr. Young used to live, and that this affiant went through a field to Shearer station, and walked down the railroad and crossed the railroad bridge and then went around down the pike to Boonesboro, below the ferry, and that the said Gardner Jones came along and caught up with her, and took her in the buggy with him, and she went home with him. She says further that since said date she has been at the home of said Gardner Jones, at all times and at all hours and that he has fed and sheltered her. The affiant says the above statements are true.

(Signed) MAGGIE STONE. Subscribed and sworn to before me by Maggie Stone, this 18th day of August, 1919. W. K. PRICE, County Judge.

Post Says R. R. Rates Will Be Higher Under U. S. Control

(By Associated Press) Washington, Aug. 18.—Chas. A. Post, chairman of the railroad committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, told the House Interstate Commerce committee today that business sentiment of the country is unanimous that government ownership of railroads must not prevail. He said the consensus of opinion was that unless the government fixed low rates and fares and paid the deficit from the taxes which meant an added burden for the public, rates and fares will be higher under government than under private operation. He advocated consolidation of numerous lines into a limited number of strong competing systems under government regulation.

Paul H. Davis and Harold G. Peterson, army aviators, who were captured near Candelaria, Texas, while patrolling the border and who are threatened with death unless $15,000 ransom is paid. The American consul at Juarez was also instructed to take all possible steps with the Mexican authorities there to secure the release and protection of the missing aviators.

State Department officials said the ransom will be paid as soon as information is had where and to whom the money must be delivered. It has not been decided whether the United States will furnish the sum and charge it against the Carranza government or call upon the Mexican government to pay it direct.

BRITAIN'S HEAVY DEBT

(By Associated Press) London, Aug. 18.—Premier Lloyd George told the House of Commons today that the war cost forty billion pounds. Discussing the financial and industrial situation he asserted that most of this money was spent for purposes of destruction. He declared the national debt had grown from 641,000,000 to 7,800,000 pounds. He asserted the change from war to peace conditions will take just as long as the change from peace to war. The first outstanding fact of the present situation was the alarming adverse trade balance. He said import restrictions which will terminate September 1st, have given British manufacturers opportunity to make deals in goods which otherwise would have been hurried here from foreign countries.

TRUCK WRECKED WHEN TIRE BLOWS

James Allman, son of Councilman John Allman was badly shaken up and really had a narrow escape from serious injury when his father's delivery truck crashed into a tree out on Lancaster avenue. A tire blew out on the car, and young Allman was taking the machine along at such a gait that he could not control it and it served into a tree, and was smashed almost into kindling wood. It was really remarkable that young Allman was not badly hurt. The breath was knocked out of him and he was pretty sick for awhile, but soon came to himself, and luckily found no bones broken. The car was pretty much of a wreck all around.

He is sweeping everything with his crack grey filly, The Lady in Grey, full sister to Maydan, and that she is going to have to be reckoned with by the best of them at the Blue Grass fair and the State Fair is now an assured fact. Doty, of Richmond, requested Mr. Joe McDowell Jr., at the Perryville fair Wednesday to find him the prettiest lady on the grounds to ride in the best turnout ring with him on the first day of the fair. Mr. McDowell immediately went to look for the "prettiest lady," and after going around the grounds for some time he saw a young lady who he believed to be the best looking one at the fair. The young lady accepted the invitation. Mr. Doty won 1st premium for the best turnout. As an evidence of Mr. McDowell's good taste and judgment of beauty, the same young lady won the silver set given by Mr. Hub Muir for the prettiest woman on the grounds yesterday, the last day of the fair. Miss Frances Parks, the pretty and attractive young lady of Perryville, is the lady that helped to win the prize for Mr. Doty and who won the silver set.

Repeal the Primary Law

The Elizabethtown News says editorially: It has cost each of the candidates for Governor in the recent primary from $15,000 to $25,000 to make the race. It has cost other candidates for Governor more than this. No man of moderate means can afford to make a race for Governor of Kentucky as long as we have the primary election law. The primary election law is the rich man's law, as the poor man is practically cut out of the running except for county office. And the principle holds true in the matter of all the minor offices. No man can make a race in a primary for auditor or secretary of state or attorney general without either spending himself or having others spend for him a very large proportion of the emoluments he will receive during his four year term should he be elected and nominated.

These facts alone are sufficient to condemn the compulsory primary. Year by year the primary law is working to exclude the poor man, the ambitious young man from seeking State office in Kentucky. And this is a great misfortune. The old convention system had its defects. It is not impossible that we can remedy the worst of those defects if we go back to the convention system. We should go back to it. The present law is a tragedy. We cannot get rid of it too soon.—Louisville Post.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

White—Allen

Many friends and relatives here are interested in news of the wedding at Danville of Miss Mary Olivia White and Mr. Andrew D. Allen. The bride is a daughter of the late Steve White, and a granddaughter of Mrs. Hugh White of this city, and formerly lived in Richmond. The Danville Messenger said of the wedding:

The marriage of Miss Mary Olivia White, of Danville, and Mr. Andrew Darnall Allen, of Flemingsburg, was solemnized at the First Presbyterian church, Danville, Kentucky, at four o'clock on Thursday, August, the fourteenth, in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The impressive ceremony was said by Rev. E. M. Green. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The altar was banked with palms and lilies, while in front was an arch of asparagus plumosa. Suspended from the center of the arch was a marriage bell of white roses, under which the couple stood during the ceremony. Mr. Milton Durham rendered a beautiful musical program before the arrival of the bridal party and as they entered Lohengrin's wedding march was played and Mendelssohn's was used as they left the church. Miss Sydney White was her sister's maid of honor and was attired in orchid colored organdy with hat to match and wore a corsage of pink roses. Little Miss Mary Bush Nichols was flower girl and wore white organdy and carried a French basket of pink roses and ferns. The bride was gowned in white Georgette crepe with hat to match and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses. She entered the church on the arm of her uncle, Mr. W. S. Rowland, who gave her in marriage and was met at the altar by the groom, with his best man, Mr. Edwin Fagan, of Augusta, Ky.

The ushers were Mr. Edgar Pogue, of Lexington, Mr. Reuben Tolle, of Flemingsburg, and Messrs. William J. Humphreys, Jr., and Lieutenant W. P. Caldwell, of Danville.

After the ceremony an informal reception was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Rowland for the immediate friends and relatives.

Quite a number of guests from Lexington, Flemingsburg, and Richmond came to witness the ceremony. The bride is quite an attractive and popular young lady, and was the recipient of many useful and handsome gifts from admiring friends and relatives. HOW WEAK WOMEN ARE MADE STRONG

Mrs. Westmoreland Tells in the Following Letter.

Harrison, N. Y.—"When my first child was born I did not know about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and had a very hard time. I read in the newspaper about the Vegetable Compound and when my second child came I took it and was well during the whole time, and childbirth was a hundred times easier. Ever since then I have used it for any weakness and would not be without it for the world. I do all my work and am strong and healthy. I am nursing my baby, and I still take the Vegetable Compound as it keeps a woman in good health. You may publish my testimonial for the good of other women, if you choose to do so."—Mrs. C. WESTMORELAND, Harrison, N. Y.

Women who suffer from displacements, irregularities, inflammation, ulceration, backache, headaches and nervousness should lose no time in giving this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial, and for special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

RYE ROSEN VARIETY

Was selected and improved from an envelope of Russian Rye furnished in 1909 by Mr. Rosen, a student from Russia at the Michigan Agricultural College. This variety immediately began to show its superiority and after proving its ability to double the yields obtainable with any other variety, it was widely distributed through the Farm Crops Department by Agricultural Colleges.

Rosen Rye is a stiff strawed, large headed variety, which when pure, ordinarily has four full rows of grain on over 99 per cent of its heads. It seldom winter kills and is rapidly taking the place of wheat on lighter soils and under adverse climatic conditions.

The acreage planted to Rosen Rye this fall will be enormous. Anticipate your needs and place your order now.

Get pure Michigan grown Rosen Rye. Buy, pure, original Rosen Rye. State Rosen Rye when you buy your seed.

Limited quantity of this rye offered for immediate sale at $2.25 per bushel in new 2 bushel bags.

Timothy Seed Purity 99 1-2 percent; germination, 95 per cent; the highest quality at $6.40 per bushel.
